Mr. ARCHER, a memorial from Norfolk bomr. ARCHER, a memorial from Nortolk bo-rough against any change in the tariff. Also, a memorial from Philadelphia, asking a change in the naturalization laws. Mr. A. said, as other gentlemen who had presented similar petitions had taken occasion to express their dissent from the prayer that 21 years may be required to make citizens of aliens, he would take occasion, on the contrary, to express his entire concurrence with it, and he promised further that, if no one else

Also, by leave, introduced a bill for the pur chase, and construction of Morse's Telegraph from Washington to New York city. The Senate took up the "bill to provide for the remission of duty on railroad iron in certain

Mr. EVANS advocated the policy of this bill at considerable length. It furnished protection to great State and individual enterprises which, in every respect, were of vast importance to the country. He dwelt upon the large proportion of domestic labor that entered into the construction domestic labor that entered into the construction of these roads, and the duty of the Government to foster this when directed to prosecution of works of national utility. He stated the amount of duties remitted from '32 to '41 inclusive, at $4,800,000; and the whole amount that would be remitted, if the present bill passed, at $6,100,000; that is, the Government extended encouragement to these works at the rate of half a million per annum. The whole estimated amount expended upon them by States and individuals was stated at $175,000,000. In answering the objection that the bill would operate injuriously upon do-mestic manufacture of iron, Mr. E. said if this were so, the Senate well knew that he would be among the very last to advocate it-but he did not

There was railroad iron enough already laid up in England to supply all the railroads in the world for a year to come, and the factories there were still in full blast.

Alluding to the Mount Savage iron works, in Maryland, Mr. E. believed their capital was 6 or $700,000. [Mr. Merrick said $5,000,000.] What! said Mr. E., $5,000,000, impossible! it can't be all paid in? [Mr. M. understood that it was, and mostly expended, too.] Well, said Mr. E., it is a very wealthy corporation, and three fourths of the stock is owned by wealthy Englishmen. The board of control sits in London, and the dividends are paid there, and he believed they contemplated sending over some of their own laborers who work cheaper than ours.

Mr. E. spoke until the morning hour was ex-hausted, and Mr. MILLER next obtained the floor; on his motion, the Senate then passed into Exe-

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The SPEAKER laid before the House a com munication from the Postmaster General, in which this official complains of remarks and charges made in debate some time since by Mr. Garrett Davis, of Kentucky, in reference to the interference of a special post office agent in the cauvass between himself and Mr. Robert Wick-

Mr. DAVIS reiterated his charges, and stood ready to substantiate them, and was proceeding with a statement of facts, when he was interrupted by Messrs. Dawson, Hammett, and others, who objected to his making a speech.

Mr. D. said he had no such design, but he wished merely to say that if Mr. Wickliffe, or any friend of his, desired an investigation in this matter, he stood ready to meet it, and to prove all he had said in the premises.

Mr. CAVE JOHNSON rose with a resolution. and prefaced its presentation by observing that the language of Mr. D. now seemed to be differ-ent from what it was on the occasion complained of by the Postmaster General.

Mr. D. here interrupted Mr. J., by inquiring in what respect his present remarks differed from

Mr. JOHNSON then read a short extract from Mr. D.'s remarks, as published in the Intelligen-

Mr. D. said that portion of his argument which the gentleman from Tennessee had read was not that of direct charges, but inferences from facts which he had submitted, and the correctness of which he left the public to judge. Mr. JOHNSON went on to say that if Mr.

D.'s statements were true, he had no hesitation in affirming that the Postmaster General ought to be inpeached; if not true, it was equally the duty of the House to vindicate him before the public. He then submitted a resolution, and moved the previous question, referring the matter to the Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, with instructions to investigate the matter, and authority to send for persons and papers.

The resolution was adopted.

Subsequently Mr. DAVIS submitted an additional resolution, instructing the same committee to inquire into the abuse of authority and malversation in office of the Postmaster General.

The resolution was objected to, and Mr. DAVIS moved a suspension of the rules. and asked the yeas and nays, which were ordered, and stood yeas 86, nays 89; so there not being two-thirds, the rules were not suspended. Various reports were made from several of the standing committees.

Among the reports was one from the Committee of Ways and Means, by Mr. McKAY, of a bill appropriating upwards of $500,000 for certain purposes connected with the Navy.

Mr. ADAMS asked if this was not the same thing that was attempted to be made part of the Navy Appropriation bill?

TO THE PUBLIC.

WASHINGTON, May 25, 1844.

Having called upon Samuel Raub, Assistant Doorkeeper to the House of Bepresentatives, for a bill of $43 92, for which I have got judgment. A few days after be called upon me at the Columbian Academy, about the last week of April, and proposed to pay $20 on the first of May, (when he would draw his pay,) and give a note for the remainder at ninety days. I told him I would call upon him in a few days, and make the arrangement; that we would not disagree. Accordingly I called upon him that I wanted to see him. He came, and remarked very insolently that he never would pay me one cent; that he would plead the the Act of Insolvency. I remarked that an officer of the House of Representatives of the United States ought not to disgrace himself by doing so. He replied that it was an every day occurrence here.

On Saturday, the fifth of May, I again called upon him. He came out, assumed the utmost haughtiness, and insolently asked me, "what now?" I asked him why he appointed the time to settle with me, if he did not intend to do so. At this time the noise that he made, drew the attention of some of the bystanders. He turned and looked into the Representative Hall, then said to me in the most haughty and impudent manner, "you had better clear yourself, we are a fighting people here;" and remarked at the same time, "you are an old scamp, you have often sold the bed, blankets, &c. from the widow and orphan." This is a palpable lie. I have never in my life sold one cent's worth of property for rent, although I have lost much. I have lived in this city for 36 years, and ought to be pretty well known. I defy any person to prove what this understrapper charges me with. This conduct is not only itsulting to me, but to the National Legislature, which he calls a fighting people. He thinks by this means to scare those to whom he owes honest debts. If those who have the regulation of the affairs of church and state would pay proper attention to those in their employment, and see that they ac themselves.
Their being employed as officers of Government en

Their being employed as officers of Government enables them to contract debts that they never intend to pay, and if they had a chance would commit any act rather than pay their honest debts.

I again observe, that if the actions of those who govern the affairs of church and state would correspond with their pretensions, the community would get clear of such fellows, and their places would be supplied by honest men.

All that I have stated here I can prove; and I submit it to the honorable members of our National Legislature, to the citizens of Washington, and the public in general.

JOHN McLEOD.

JOHN McLEOD.

P. S. Such men as this Raub are often forced upon the community by bargain and corruption. It is thought by some that this braggart obtained his office by this method. It may be considered that he fills his situation well, when he orders a person that calls upon him for an honest debt, to begone, and tells him that we are a fighting people here—meaning himself and the honorable House of Representatives. Surely the public, and our honorable Representatives ought to be acquainted with the conduct of their servants.

CRIMINAL COURT.

The Petit Jury were on yestesday morning discharged from attendance in this Court until Monday-there being no cases in a state of readiness for trial. The Grand Jury are employed in investigating the several matters which have been referred to them; and, among others, we understand, that of Mr. Brown, of Kentucky, who accidentally shot Mr. Wirt, a messenger in the House of Representatives-and which case has been handed over to the criminal authority of the District for examination, by resolution of the House.

TEMPERANCE .- A meeting of the friends of the Temperance cause will be held to-moorrow afternoon, on the East front of the Capitol. Hon. Mr. Belser, of Alabama, and other prominent friends of Temperance, will address the meeting.

MAX BOHRER .- The Concert of this gentleman on Thursday evening at the Assembly Rooms was well attended, and the finished exccution of this inimitable performer on the Violincello drew forth loud and repeated plaudits. The "Souvenirs de America," a novel arrangement by Mr. Bohrer of some of our most popular native music, with beautiful variations on each particular tune, was the gem of the performance, and was received with manifest delight and approval. M. Bohrer was accompanied on the piano forte by his son, a youth of 17 or 18, whose performance was also admirable.

We cannot close our notice without a passing tribute to the fine singing of Mons. Guibert, whose services were volunteered to Max Bohrer for the occasion. His French ballads were sung in a manly and beautiful style, and his voice betokened a finished musical education. He was accompanied on the piano forte by Professor Daunas, of our city, with whose exquisite performance on that instrument we are all familiar. It is to be hoped that, if not incompatible with other arrangements, Max Behrer will repeat his entertainment.

CONCERT .- Our readers will no doubt be gratified to learn that the PLATT Family intend favoring the public with another of their concerts at the Assembly Rooms, Louisiana avenue, on Monday evening next. A really good evening's entertainment will be afforded at a very cheap rate. Let it be in truth a "complimentary concert."

HEADQUARTERS!

The policy of the public in encouraging quackery is to me a speculative science, whose data is often vague, and, in conclusion, subject to the vilest abuse. The error of misleading the many visiters to this Me tropolis when a principle is founded upon the fact of favor, without its real quality, and knowledge of that the most of all wonderful arts, physiognomy, in hairdressing; and if there should be a failure upon the part of the operator, reasoning minds do not in general apply the same to professors, which is within themselves a compound of facts, affections, and correctness, not to be controlled by a mere conjecturing imagination, while the multiplied relations of the mere possessors, and not the professors, are constantly baffling with isolated considerations. Nevertheless, this great oversight upon their part has corrected an error which will be the entire overthrow of quackery; which error the Egyptians, who at a very early period distinguished for their knowledge and skill in this truly dear-bought talent—they, above all people, appreciated perfection in all professors. A similar method was practised by the Greeks:—it is said to have been their custom, proposed or introducted by Nicholai and by Xenophon, that who ever dare to assume that which they had not acquired by a practical knowledge, they should be put to immediate death. The Romans, the headquarters of all literature, adopted the same method. Eneas, their great poet, subscribed his name in accordance. The language used by that great and good man is this: the inference from this conviction that quackism, when encouraged by any people, is an evil, is a fact undeniable. Too much has been done for this sect, and that the greatest advantage would be useful by cleansing away the rubbish—defining and adhering and that the greatest advantage would be useful by cleaning away the rubbish—defining and adhering to a few rational professors. That from erecting any new superstructure upon this discordant ruin of quackery, which had already crumbled beneath the quackery, which had already crumbled beneath the weight of their own unnecessary lumber. "Blow winds, come racks, or at least The quacks will die with harness on their backs;
